FRIENDLY ADVICE.

BY "THE BISHOP OF PETROLIA."

Oh, Johnny, take a friend's advice.
And marry not too soon—
Listen to wisdom, and delay
The long'd for honeymoon.
Wait till you've saved five hundred dollars
And made a cot your own;
Wait till your heart may beat within
A bosom fully grown.

You'll make a better husband then,
And Kate a better wife,
And sweeter babies by-&-by shall give
A lustre to your life.
They'll sing and prattle on your knee,
Until within their eyes
Your own shall see as through a glass
The promised paradise.

Oh, Johnny, listen; Mrs. Brown,
Your frotful neighbor there,
Ten years ago was all that man
Called beautiful and fair.
But now, where are the roses twain
That bloom'd upon her cheek?
Oh, Johnny, let those mournful eyes
To you a warning speak.

In the meantime, how sweet with Kate
The gloaming hour to rove:
How sweet to court in quiet paths
Or music haunted grove
Spring hange her jewels on the boughs
When constant lovers meet;
And autumn lays his locks of gold
With blessings at their feet.

The moon, apriaing, wills the clouds
Should hasten to their lair,
While she dissolves her smiles for love
In silver everywhere.
But youthful hearts, who know to rest
The secrets of the skies,
Must pause e'er they aspire to look
Through very different eyes.

So, Johnny, be advised by me,
And marry not so soon;
Think of that gall that may be yours
After the honeymoon.
Wait till you've provided for
The coming rainy day;
Till maturer strength shall give
Your intellect fairplay.

Important Law Relating to Judicial Sales.

An act passed at the late session of the Legislature, relative to judicial sales, and the preservation of the lien of mortgage, is exciting considerable alarm among the purchasers of real estate, sold by order of the court since the approval of this law. The first section of the act, approved the 23d day of March, 1867, relates to deeds made to convey real estate under the act of 10th April, 1853, and to the security required by said act, which creates no embarrassment in the purchase of real estate sold by judicial order. But the second and third sections of the act in question are important, and we therefore print them in full:

SECTION 2. That private sales made by order of court, under the said act of the eighteenth day of April, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three, shall discharge the premises sold, except liens of record, and liens secured by mortgage: Provided, That the security required by said act shall have been duly entered.

SECTION 3. When the lien of a mortgage upon real estate is, or shall be, prior to all other liens upon the same property, except other mortgages, ground rents, purchase money due to the Commonwealth, taxes, charges, assessments, and municipal claims, whose lien, though afterward accruing, has, by law, priority given it, the lien of such mortgage shall not be destroyed, or in any way affected, by any judicial or other sale whatsoever, whether such judicial sale shall be made by virtue or authority of any order or decree of any orphans' or other court, or of any writ of execution, or otherwise, howsoever: Provided, That this section shall not apply to cases of mortgages upon unseated lands, or sales of the same for taxes.

In view of this act, it becomes every bidder on property ordered to be sold by judicial decree, first to ascertain what amount of liens or mortgages is on record against it, and to regulate bids as to include the sums of such liens or mortgage. A case occurred in this city only a day after this law went into force, where a party bid $5,000 on a certain property, against which was a mortgage of $5,000—thus, by the terms of this act, the purchaser becoming responsible for the payment of $10,000, for that for which he had only bid $5,000. Regarding the equity of the case, Judge Pearson set the sale aside.—It is well, however, that this law be thoroughly understood, and we therefore print its important sections, so that bidders on real estate sold by order of the courts may inform themselves for the protection of their interests. Every newspaper in the State should publish this law, for the protection of the people. We have no doubt that the Legislature, at its next session, will repeal this law, as it involves risks which are unfair, and in four cases out of five cannot fail to be ruinous.—Har. Tel.

A Story for Swearers.

A gentleman once heard a laboring man swear dreadfully in the presence of a number of his companions. He told him it was a cowardly thing to swear in company, when he dared not do it by himself. The man said he was not afraid to swear at any time or any place.

"I'll give you ten dollars," said the gentleman, "if you will go into the village churchyard at twelve o'clock to-night, and swear the same oaths you have uttered here, when you are alone with your God."

"Agreed," said the man, "'tis an easy way o learning ten dollars."

"Well, come to me to-morrow, and say you have done it, and the money is yours."

The time passed on midnight came. The man went to the graveyard. It was a night of pitchy darkness. As he entered the graveyard not a sound was heard; all was still as death. Then the gentleman's words "alone with God," came over him with a wonderful power. The thought of the wickedness he had committed, and what he had come here to do, darted through his mind like a flash of lightning. He trembled at his folly.—Afraid to take another step he fell upon his knees, instead of the dreadful oaths he came to utter, the earnest cry went up, "God be merciful to me a sinner!"

The next day he went to the gentleman and thanked him for what he had done, and said he had resolved not to swear another oath as long as he lived.—Miss Barbers Weekly.

NABBY'S LAST.

The Secret Service of the Raleigh Twins.

POST OFFICE, CROSS ROADS, June 10, 1867.

I accompanied the President to Rawly.—The President doesn't go safe at goin anywhere without me to attend to the details, and do the nice financeering which is necessary.

The Rawly trip was the Waterloo uv a serious trouble in the Cabinet. The President wuz in favor uv it. He knowed, he wuz descendent uv a fighting perfession. He had allus experienced a most remarkable love for his parents, particularly fur them on his father's side. He had always warmed the entire circle uv official honor, and had fought traitors on all sides, but he cud lay his hand on his heart and say that he never knowed a true man but who, at some period uv his life, had a father. Why, then, should we not honor our fathers? How cood it be better than plain by layin corner stuns? His father died at in 1812, and it was time that this duety was attended to.—Besides, at this crisis in the affairs uv the country, with Wilson and Keller a-stumpin through the South, he felt it wood be a good thing to show ourselves.

Seward felt that it wuz well to go. Filial love wuz charmin. Shakspeer, who wuz ez justly celebrated as a dramatist ez one he cood mention, uses the diplomatic telegraffin, remarks, "How sharper now a serpent's tooth it is to hev a thankless child," the trooth uv which he he had experienced, ez he had been styled the father uv the Republican party, but that wuz not to the pint. It iz the dooty uv every son to lay corner stuns. In this case it wood perhaps hev bin more creditable had it bin dun fifty years ago, but what difference duz it? It is natral, ez we are about bein gathered to our fathers, to remember em. Besides, he had a little speech which he felt to he'd like deliver. He wantid to bear testimony to the patriotism uv the son uv Jacob Johnson; particularly to our colored brethren in North Carliny who hev been likenin to Kelley and Wilson.

Randall didn't believe in it at all. He made bold to say, that ez this deceast Johnson had slept without a corner stun for fifty-five years he'd manage to git along a while longer. It wuz rather too late in the day. He bleeved in feelin sorrowful over the deeds uv our relatives, but he didn't go much on doin it fifty-five years after date. It wuz too much like bustin into tears over the sufferins uv out first wife's great grandmother. The speeches he didn't bleeve in at all. He had seen some uv it—hed accompanied one to'or uv the kind.—He hed bin on it. He was at Cleveland, at Indianapolis, and Springfield, Illinoy. He begged to be excoosed. He didn't keer about tailin sich a kite agin. If the people uv the South should receeve us cordelly ez the people uv the North did, he preferred to consult his feelins and be absent. He wuz a sensitive plant, and disliked some things. If his memory served him rite, the demonstashun coodn't be considered flattrin. The people didn't fling dead cats at us, but they did wuss. If they wuz cold they was rather tu cold.—If they wuz in a yolatile temper they wuz rather tu lively. He had almost made up his mind that it was a goose chase, and that Raleigh was a dooty, but when success iz ez impossible ez water in the grate Sahara, wat's the yoose? Wherfore struggle? Let us go slow, draw our salaries to the end of our 'spective terms; and so live on that when the summons comes to jine the innoomerable caravan that move out of Washington to'ords ther 'spective homes, we go not like the dusky slave at nite, wat's bet his all on two pair, but soothed and sustained by wat we've saved, so like one who's got the wherewithal to live. It wuz a source uv comfort to him to know that the wurst uv men wuz soon forgotten. Whoever speeks uv Tyler or Pierce or Bukannon now? Benedick Arnold is only spoken uv on Forth uv Julis and Judis Iskariot on Sundaze. It will be so for us in time, for wich thank the Lord.

But it wuz determined to go, and I wuz sent to Rawly to find out where the grave uv the honored father uv our honored President wuz reely located, and to make sich other arrangements ez the exigences uv the case demanded, wich I did. I hed difficulty in locatin the grave, and aint jest sure that I found the rite one. The people of Raleigh wuz anxious tu hev it cum off, ez trade wuz dull in the retail line, and for fear that I wood report that the grave coodent be found, and thus nip their budden hopes, they gave me the choice of some twelve or fifteen. Selectin the most eligible, I made the other arrangements and returned.

The excursion contrasted very favorably with the one we took last fall. The people received us at every stashen with the most affectin demonstrashens uv love. "Johnson! Johnson! Johnson!" they yelled at each stoppin place, wich sounded sweeter in his ears and mine than the damnable iterashun uv "Grant! Grant! Grant!" wich greetid us at every pint North. The President wuz sorry he hedn't taken Grant with him to show him that ef he wuz the most popular in some localities, we had the heart uv the people in others. But ther wuz drawbax to our enjoyment. No sooner wood the President commence "Fellow Citizens!" than Randall wood pull the bell-rope and off the trane wood start. He wuz determined that the President shoodn't speek, wich put me to a great deal uv trouble, ez after we arrived I hed to write out and telegraph to the papers the speeches the President wood have made.

At Rawley General Battles welcomed the Presidential party, and the President responded. He remark that in Rawley he first opend his tender eyes, a penniless boy. Here is the scens uv his childhood; here is everything to bind man to his fellow, and to associate him with that which he is associated; here is where the tenderness uv heart hev taken holt upon everything to which it hez attached itself. But he was wandrin from his subject. His mind went back to the day he left this city a penniless boy. Where is them which he left behind him? He begged to inquire wher is the Haywoods?—

"Killed at Antetiam," shouted a returned Confedrit. "I wuz by Wilyum's side wen he wuz shot."

—"Wher is the Hunters?"

"Runin a distillry at Wallhill Court House," sed the same feller, who thort the President reely wanted to kno. He wuz choked down, and the President perceeded:

"Wher is the Roysters and the Smiths; the Brownses and Joneses? Wher is the long list uv men who lived at that day; who lived when I wuz a penniless boy, and who like me commanded respect for constancy of devocommanded respect for constancy of devoshun? I feel proud uv this demonstration; I feel proud uv any demonstration. Ez allooshun hez been made to my boyhood days, wen I wuz a penniless boy, I may say here, ez pertinent to that subjict, that I hev adhered to the fundamental principles uv the Gov'ment, and to the flag and Constooshun. When I went out from among yoo a penniless boy, I adopted the Constooshen ez my gide, and by them hev allus been guided. To the young I wood say that they will be safe in takin me as a model. Levin here a penniless boy, it is not for me to say whether or not I hev succeded. I am no longer a penniless boy, nor is them wich is round me. Mrs. Cobb ain't a penniless boy, nor is—but this is wanderin from the subjict. For the encouragment of the young men afore me, I wood say that I hev enjoyed all I care about, am no aspirant for nothin, and therfor the way is now open for em. I thank you for this cordjel welcum. North Carliny sent me out a penniless boy, and did not afford me sich advantages ez consid'rin my merits, I ought to hev had, yet I love her. Its better ez it wuz. Goin out a penniless boy, and returnin after holdin every offis from Alderman uv my adoptid village, up to President, shows my qualities to much better advantage then ef I hedn't gone out a penniless boy. I thank you for this tribute to my many good qualities."

And he started to git down when Randall whispered suthin in his left ear.

Blain promptly and drawin out his hankercher, the President assoomed a look uv subdood grief and resumed:

"I leave come among yoo to participate in the dedicashun uv a monument to a man wich yoo all loved, sho' it her taken suthin like fifty years for yoo to diskiver it. He was poor and humble wich akkounts for my going from among yoo a penniless boy, but uv him I ask proud, for hed it not been for him I woodn't hev returned the shinin example to yoor young men wich I am."

The korner-stun wuz laid and the monument set onto it. It is uv red limestone ten foot high. Its ez good a ten foot uv stun respeck ez thar is in N. Carliny. Ez the monument was elevated thar wuz the appropriate speches, and then my little arrangements cum in. A nigger woman I hed tuck with us from Washington rushed for'ard and sed:—"Bress do Lord, I'ze bin a watin for dis day to see de President—our President!" at wich pint a squad uv niggers I'd picked up and drilled, hollered "Ror!"

This little effectin sceen over, two quadroons, wich I'd also brought with us in a privit car, cum for'ard with a expresshun uv profound greef, at wich the President wept, and tenderly flung bokaze of the choicest flowers we cood buy in Washington into the toom.

It wuz reely a tochin tabloo. The ancient nigger woman a holdin onto the President's hand; the young quadroons a slingin the bokaze; the President with his hed bowed, apparantly dreamin uv his boyhood; me with a expreshun uv thankfulness that the niggers hed at last rekognized their Moses; Seward with a saintly smile on his face; Wells tryin to look ez near like Seward ez possible, but falin miserably to look like onnything but the eggrejis old ass he is, and Randall with his hankercher to his eyes ez if outmanned by the movin seen, but keeping one eye cocked over the hankerchor, to see how it tuck among the niggers, it wuz a seen easier imagined than described.

Ther wuz several incidents wich okkurred wich did not appear in the telegraph. Wen His Excellency wuz speekin uv himself and remarkt that his race wuz nearly run, an unregenerate nigger yelled "Tank de Lord!" and when the quadroons wuz a strewin flowers on the grave uv His Excellency's father, I observed rather more tittrin among the niggers than I approved of on so sollum an occasion. I askt Randall wot he thort uv the speculashun and his answer "I didn't pay!" struck me ez hevin a vane uv trooth runnin thro it.

On our return the President wuz allowed to speek more, for Randall got tired uv watchin him. We returned in good health, well, for he hez a iron constitooshun, and has shown uv hisself altho he's 60 years old, a good upon the people, and ez a matter uv coorse Seckerary Welles thinks so to.

A WAG who is familiar with the general topography of Horace Greely's hand writing, says that Horace was perfectly safe in signing Jeff. Davis' bond, as no man living can make it out, and posterity will be as much puzzled over the signature as it is about the authorship of the Junius tracts.

A SINGULAR law suit is now on trial at Albany. Two young men, married but a few weeks, got sick of their wives and proposed to "swap" and very singularly the women consented. But the husband of the homeliest one promised to pay $300 "to boot," and as he has neglected to hand over, the suit is brought to recover the money.

"LITTLE boys should be seen and not heard," replied a youngster when he didn't know his lesson.

The Bridal Wine Cup.

"Pledge with wine—pledge with wine," cried the young and thoughtless Harvey Wood; "pledge with wine," ran through the bridal party.

The beautiful bride grew pale—the decisive hour had come. She pressed her white hands together, and the leaves of the wreath trembled on her brow—her breath came quicker, and her heart beat wilder.

"Yes, Marion, lay aside your scruples for once," said the judge, in a low tone, going towards his daughter.

Pouring a brimming cup, they held it with tempting smiles toward Marion.

She was very pale, though more composed; and her hand shook not as smiling back she gracefully accepted the chrystal tempter, and raised it to her lips. But scarcely had she done so when she gave forth a piercing exclamation of "Oh! how terrible!"

"What is it!" cried one and all.

"Wait," she answered, "and I will tell you. I see," she added, pointing at the sparkling, ruby liquid—"a sight that beggars all description; and yet listen—I will paint it for you if I can. It is a lovely spot; tall mountains crowned with verdure rise in awful sublimity around; a river runs through, and bright flowers grow to the water's edge. There is a thick warm mist, that the sun seeks vainly to pierce. Trees wave to the airy motion of the birds; but there a group of Indians gather; they flit to and fro, with something like sorrow on their dark brows. And in their midst lies a manly form—but his cheek how deathly, his eye wild with the fitful fever. One friend stands beside him—nay, kneels; for he is pillowing that poor head upon his breast.

"Genius in ruins—oh! the high, holy looking brow! Look how he throws back the damp curls! see him clasp his hands! Mark how he clutches at the form of his companion, imploring to be saved. Oh! hear him to be saved. Oh! hear him call piteously his father's name—see him twine his fingers together as he shrieks for his only sister—the twin of his soul—weeping for him in his distant land.

"See! his arms are lifted to heaven—he prays now wildly, for mercy! hot fever rushes through his veins; the friend beside him is weeping; awe-stricken, the dark men move silently away, and leave the living and the dying together."

There was a hush in the princely parlor, broken only by what seemed a smothered sob, from some manly bosom. She spoke again:

"It is evening now. The moon is coming up, and its beams lay gently on his forehead. He moves not; his eyes are set in their sockets; dim are their piercing glances; in vain his friend whispers the name of father and sister—death is there. Death! and no soft hand, no gentle voice to bless and soothe him. His head sinks back. One convulsive shudder! He is dead!"

A groan ran through the assembly, so vivid was her description, so unearthly her look, so inspired her manner.

"Dead!" she repeated again, "and there they scoop a grave; and there, without a shroud, they lay him down in that damp, reeking earth—the only son of a proud father, the only idolized brother of a fond sister. And he sleeps to-day in that distant country, with no stone to mark the spot. There he lies—my father's son! my own twin brother! a victim to this deadly poison. Father," she exclaimed while the tears rained down her cheek, "father, shall I drink it now?"

The form of the old Judge was convulsed:

"No, no, my child—no!"

She lifted the goblet and letting it fall, it dashed into a thousand pieces. Then, turning to the company, said:

"Let no friend henceforth tempt me to peril my soul for wine. Not firmer are the everlasting hills than my resolve, God helping me, never to touch or taste the poison cup. And he to whom I have given my hand—who watched over my brother's dying form, in that solemn hour, and buried the poor wanderer there by the river, in that land of gold, will, I trust, sustain me in that resolve."

His glistening eyes—his sad, sweet smile was her answer.

Those who were present at that wedding can never forget the impression so solemnly made. Many from that hour renounced forever the social bowl.

In a small country town there lived a poor boy, who was at times a little insane. One day the poor little fellow, having obtained a fish-hook and line, was amusing himself by fishing in a dirty puddle of water. The minister of the place came along, espied the boy, and thinking to have some fun, asked him what he was fishing for.

"Why," replied the boy, "I'm fishing for the devil."

"Indeed," said the minister, "and what have you got for bait?"

"Well," says the boy, "I have had a lawyer on my hook for some time, and couldn't get a bite at all; but now I have just put on a minister, and—by Jove! the devil has begun to nibble!"

NO YOUNG woman ever looks so well to a sensible man as when dressed in a plain, neat, modest attire, without a single ornament about her person. She looks then as though she possessed worth in herself, and needed no artificial rigging to enhance her value. If a young woman would spend as much time in improving her mind, training her temper, and cherishing kindness, mercy, and other good qualities, as most of them do in extra dress and ornament to increase their personal charms, she would at a glance be recognized among a thousand—her character would be read in her countenance.

"SIR," said a sturdy beggar to a benevolent man, "please give me a quarter; I am hungry and unable to procure food. The quarter was given, when the beggar said: "You have done a noble deed. You have saved me from something which I feared I would have to come to." "What is that?" said the benefactor. "Work," was the mournful answer.

"MARK TWAIN" says that to "see a lovely girl of seventeen, with her saddle on her head, and her muzzle on behind, and her vail just covering the end of her nose, come tripping along in her hoopless, red bottomed dress, like a church on fire, is enough to set a man wild."

THE latest style of bonnet is a white glass bead, worn on the top of a chignon, with a shread of lavender floss running through it for strings. Ladies should be careful not to omit the bead, as there is danger of taking cold.

Curious Divorce Case.

We have heard the particulars of some rather novel proceedings in connection with a divorce case which might be worked up into quite a sensational story. As reported to us, some time last summer, a man who was of no particular use to his family when at home, being a drinking, vagabondish sort of a fellow, deserted his wife, to whose maintenance he had contributed little, and joined a circus company. Thereupon, his wife commenced proceedings for a divorce. In the fall, the circus having completed its swing around the circle, the husband came back to the city and lay about town for a month or two before venturing back to his old home, his wife protesting she would have nothing to do with him. In the course of time, however, the old feeling of love which had once led her to consent to be his bride, caused his wife to relent, and she received the husband, who made fair promises, to her bed and board again, and the parties continued to live peaceably together till a short time ago.—Meantime the proceeding for a divorce went forward, and a bill was granted at the last term of court. This did not separate the parties, however, who continued to live together as husband and wife till a few days ago, when the husband having relapsed into his old bad habits, the divorced wife repulsed him from her bosom and her home and sent him adrift. It will be admitted she had borne with him longer than the law requires or even allows.—Mellean (Wis) Journal, June 4th.

A Word to Husbands.

Has anybody ever written upon the responsibility which rests upon a husband with regard to the education of his wife? Of course we know what you will say about her being supposed to have "finished her education" before marriage, and all that; and yet you and we know that she begins as new an education with him as if she had never seen the alphabet. His views, feelings, his ideas are they nothing to her, if she loves him? years after, when they who "knew her as a girl," come to talk with the matron, do they not find her husband reflected in every sentence, either for good or evil? Of course, the more strongly a woman loves the more completely is her own identity absorbed in her husband's. This is a point which is too much neglected by married men. A good husband is almost certain to have a good wife; and if she be not so good as he could wish at the commencement of their married life, he can soon educate her up to the proper mark. And, on the other hand, he can so educate her down as to render his house a purgatory, and, perhaps, bring upon himself and his family the greatest agony and keenest pangs of disgrace which a husband or children can feel.

ELOQUENT PASSAGE.—The best thing Geo. D. Prentice ever wrote is this inimitable passage:—"It cannot be that earth is man's only abiding place. It cannot be that our life is a bubble cast up by the ocean of eternity, to float a moment upon its waves and sink into nothingness. Else, why is it the high and glorious aspirations which leap like angels from the temple of our hearts, are forever wandering unsatisfied? Why is it that the rainbow and cloud come over us with a beauty that is not of earth, and then pass off to leave us to muse on their loveliness? Why is it that the stars which hold their festival around the midnight throne are set above us, in our tears and weakness, mocking us with their unapproachable glory? And finally, why is it that the bright forms of human beauty are presented to our view and taken from us, leaving the thousand streams of our affection to flow back in an Alpine torr

THE nomination of Judge Williams for the Supreme Bench was very satisfactory to the Convention that made it; and from our exchanges we gather that he is a very acceptable candidate throughout the whole State. His legal attainments, and spotless private character, together with his well known political opinions, will call out the full vote of the party that brought him before the people, and with this out, his election is certain.—The Williamsport Convention performed its labor wisely and well.

THE "Lost Cause" party of this county held its nominating convention in this place on last Monday. The attendance was slim, so slim indeed that some seven or eight of the townships were not represented at all. In addition to this discouraging circumstance, there was also lacking even a particle of enthusiasm. Not one of those present seemed to have even a ray of hope; and Esq. Glass of New Brighton was candid enough to admit in open convention that if the party insisted upon his being the candidate for Associate Judge, that he "might as well be beat as any one else." The 'Squire evidently believed that "an open confession was good for the soul." After "setting things up" in a weakly style, the meeting proceeded to nominate a ticket. It is as follows:

For Assembly—John White.
For Associate Judge—John Glass.
For Prothonotary—R. D. Cooper.
For Treasurer—H. B. Anderson.
For Commissioner—A. J. Jolly.
For Jury Commissioner—J. A. Carothers.
For Poor House Director—Jas. Jackson.
For Auditor—J. McCarter.
For Trustees of Academy—S. B. French & David A. Lowry.

The platform adopted was made up of a few silly simperine sickening editorials from read by the editor of that paper) and were regarded in their proper light by the Convention, as is evident from the fact that only about one half of its members voted for their adoption, and they in a tone so feeble as to be scarcely heard where the Secretary was sitting. Intense abhorrence was openly expressed for these resolutions by two or three leading Democrats immediately after the Convention adjourned. They could not see what the party throughout the county had to do with the lanes and alleys in Beaver, nor what interest it had in a few dollars of Bounty money raised and owned by a School District in Borough Township. We shall refer to these resolutions more particularly in our next.

Two soldiers had asked for the empty honor of a nomination at the hands of this convention. One of them, Mr. Shannon, after having served his country faithfully and well received but 8 votes in the Convention for Treasurer, while his competitor, a genuine stay-at-home "Lost Cause" man received 80. John Hall of Hanover township another soldier, was a candidate for Prothonotary and believing that he would get the nomination, a systematic effort was made to break him down, which was successful. Odell was the tool used to accomplish this end. When the nomination of a candidate for Prothonotary was in order he arose and withdrew the name of Mr. Knight, and substituted that of R. D. Cooper; Mr. Cooper's friend jumped up and stated that he was authorized to say that Mr. Cooper did not want to be a candidate. This left Mr. Hall, the soldier, a clear field, and he should then have been nominated by acclamation. But Odell took the floor and stated that if Mr. Cooper declined being a candidate then he would bring Mr. Knight's name before the Convention again. Odell's objective point was to beat Hall, and it mattered but little to him who he did it with.—So, after a little talking, and a good bit of winking between Odell and Cooper's friend, it was agreed that Mr. Cooper's name should go before the convention, and he was then nominated by an overwhelming vote. Shannon and Hall, the only soldiers before the convention, were thus sacrificed, and if any one can give us a reason for being thus treated save that of having "committed the crime of fighting in favor of their country" we would like to have it. They helped to whip the rebels in the field, but the rebels in turn whipped them in the Court House on Monday last.

LAST year the Democratic convention in this county showed some signs of life; this year it exhibited not one of the kind. Last year they proposed to "move upon our works themselves;" this year they offer to do nothing in the offensive line, but on the contrary propose to surrender before a blow has been struck. Then the party was under the leadership of S. B. Wilson Esq., now it is managed by J. H. Odell and a few boon companions, who have already reduced its character to as low a standard as the most degraded in its ranks could desire. One year more, under such rule, and the party will not only be dead, but it will ——— smell confoundedly.

The Free Railroad Law.

The Argus and the Local have both for a year past been professedly in favor of a General Free Railroad law. The editors of both of these papers have taken occasion quite frequently to tell their readers this. That was their profession, now let us see how they carried it out in their practice: The Democratic party held a Convention a few weeks ago, and to this Convention the editor of the Local went as a delegate. In the Convention a committee on resolutions was appointed, and the editor of the Local was a member of that committee. Now here was an excellent opportunity to put his free railroad professions into practice, by reporting a resolution in favor of the free principle. Did he do it? Not he! Nor did any any one else do it; and to-day the Democratic party of Pennsylvania stands upon the record without a pledge to the people in favor of a free railroad law, and the editor of the Local was one of the persons who placed it in that position. So much for him; now as to ourself: The Union party of the State held a Convention a last week at Williamsport, and to this Convention we were sent as a delegate. In that Convention a committee on resolutions was appointed, and although not a member of the committee ourself, we made it a point to see nearly every one of them, and particularly the member from this District, and urged them by every consideration we could think of, to report a free railroad resolution. They did so, and here is the pledge given by the Union party of the State to the people in favor of a general railroad law:

Ninth.—That, in conformity with the pledges given last fall by both candidates for Governor, we now demand the enactment of a free railroad law, by which the enterprise of our people may be stimulated, and the resources of the Commonwealth developed.

The editor of the Local was just as strongly pledged in favor of a free railroad law last year as were the two candidates for Governor; and why himself and party have "gone back" on the professions then made, and a hundred times reiterated since, is just what we now wish to know. Did Tom Scott's "similars" buy out the whole Democratic party? If so, how many of the "similars" came to Beaver county? Will the Local tell?

THE two political parties of this State recently held their nominating conventions.—That of the Democratic party was held at Harrisburg; that of the Unionists was held at Williamsport. We attended the latter, and while on the way thither spent a few hours at Harrisburg, and was there informed by a citizen of the place, that at least two-thirds of all the delegates that attended the Democratic Convention, either got drunk during its session or immediately afterwards.

The Williamsport gathering was made up of different material. And we state a fact well known by those who were there, when we say that of the whole number present at the Union State Convention, but one man was known to be intoxicated, and that one was not a delegate, but a reporter for a city newspaper. The contrast carries with it a significance that deserves attention.

GENERAL PATTON, (a Militia General) of this State, has been sent to the South to talk "Democracy" to the negroes. In a speech made by him last week at Richmond, he undertook to make the colored people believe that they owed more to their "old masters" for their freedom, than to any other class of persons in the country. The impression he left on this section, may be learned from the "we can't see it" that came from all parts of the audience.

THE Republicans of Crawford county on Monday of last week nominated the following ticket:

Senator—M. B. Lowry, Erie county; Assembly—Messrs. Beatty and Espy. J. Boyd Espy was the member last session. Treasurer—John Adams; Commissioner—John M. Calvin; Auditor—D. P. Compton; Jury Commissioner—A. B. Armstrong.

The friends of Senator Cameron look upon the result in Crawford county as a victory over the friends of Governor Curtin.

WILLIAMSPORT.

MEETING OF THE UNION CONVENTION.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. June 26, 1867.

The members of the State Republican Convention for 1867, convened in the Court House, in this place, at 10 o'clock this morning, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Supreme Judge. The audience chambers and gallery were crowded to excess.

COLONEL FRANCIS JORDAN,

Chairman of the State Central Committee, called the Representatives to order, and said:—"Fellow citizens and gentlemen of the Convention:—The time has arrived for the performance of my last official act as Chairman of our State Central Committee. No formal account of my stewardship has ever been rendered, nor do I propose to give one now. The results of our last campaign, as proclaimed to the world on the second Tuesday of October last, were, in the main, satisfactory. They certainly were conclusive with our adversaries (Applause). We elected our gallant standard bearer, one of the heroes of the war, Governor of this Commonwealth, I mean General John W. Geary. (Immense cheering. Sent a delegation to the National Congress more unanimous for the right than any of its predecessors (cheers), and put a most effectual extinguisher upon a certain recreant United States Senator (cheers), in a poll of 153,000 votes more than were cast at the preceding election.

The ballot-box unmistakably declared the continued unwillingness of our patriotic people to trust Rebels, or Rebel sympathizers, with the reins of government or with the political power of the country. (Cheers.) Other loyal States united with us in the grand declaration, and the insane and wicked policy of Andrew Johnson and his new friends and allies, was overwhelmed by the unprecedented and magnificent popular majority of four hundred thousand votes. (Cheers.) This was the solemn decision of the sovereign people, rendered on the merits, after a full hearing, involved in the issues, and from it there can be no appeal save by those who made it; and woe unto that would-be dictator or tyrant and his advisors who, in their impotent wrath would endeavor to explain away or set aside the verdict. We call upon Representatives in the Fortieth Congress to do their duty, and to execute the popular will as constitutionally declared. (Applause.) We live in eventful times and grave responsibilities are upon us, and it behooves us to clear away all obstructions from the pathway of duty, and to accelerate the grand march of civil liberty and the rights of man.

It is not for me to suggest, much less to dictate the principles you should declare or indicate, or the man you should name as our standard-bearer in the opening contest; but as one of the sovereign people, I insist that both platform and candidate shall be worthy our past conflicts and triumphs, and that you take no step backwards. This nation has made up its mind that the Republic shall be reunited on the basis of liberty and justice (cheers), and the choice of a proper person for Judge of our Supreme Court is an important means to that end, to insure success in the pending struggle. Pennsylvania, as heretofore, is expected to contribute her full share, and to do her whole duty. In the strength of these principles, convictions and responsibilities, let us fearlessly press onward, confidently assured that there can be no such word as fail. (Cheers). It only remains for me, gentlemen of the Convention, to call you to order; that I now do, and I am ready to receive the usual motion for preliminary organization.

HON. JOHN CESSNA,

Of Bedford, moved that General James L. Selfridge, of Northampton, act as temporary President of the Convention. Agreed to, amid applause.

REMARKS OF GENERAL SELFRIDGE.

General Selfridge said:—Gentlemen of the Convention:—I appreciate the compliment you paid to the soldiers of the late army of the Republic in selecting me as your temporary Chairman. I am fully impressed with the importance of this Convention. We are called upon by every principle of right and justice and patriotism to act with an eye single to the public good. The people of the State will hold us responsible for the nomination that we shall make to-day. Let it be a good one. Let us in our action to-day imitate that wonderful and noble soldier, General Phil. Sheridan, [At this point the cheers and demonstrations of enthusiasm in the Convention were deafening. After which, Mr. Barton, of Chester, moved that the Convention give three cheers for "Gavalry" Sheridan, which were given with a will,] whose official conduct is the theme of everybody's but Rebels praise. (Cheers.) The Convention is now ready to proceed to business.

On motion of Mr. Cessna, Mr. Hitchcock, of Luzerne, and Mr. Newlin were selected as temporary Secretaries.

Hon. Jas. L. Graham, of Allegheny, moved that the Convention proceed to select a Committee on Permanent Organization.

Wm. B. Mann, of Philadelphia, moved to amend by providing that the Convention proceed to choose a permanent President in open convention. He said the thing should be started right, and that the will of the party should not be baulked by the secret plans of a clique who might put their heads together. He nominated Hon. John Scott, of Huntingdon, for whom five-sixths of the Philadelphia delegation were ready to vote.

Mr. Kirkpatrick, of Allegheny, opposed this motion. He wanted John S. Mann, of Potter, as permanent President.

Wm. B. Mann, of Philadelphia, in a lengthy speech urged the selection of President in open convention. He said some weak and irresolute members of the party had been prophesying defeat. The only way to avoid it was to have a free and open organization.

Mr. Cessna followed for Mr. Mann's motion.

Mr. Kunkle, of Dauphin, followed.

Mr. Purviance, of Pittsburgh, regretted to hear reference to cliques and factions. He wanted this matter settled, so that members of the Convention might go home to-night.

Mr. Dickey, of Lancaster wanted this "cut-in-the-meal-tub" business ended by an open vote.

Mr. Graham charged Mr. Mann, of Philadelphia with setting up a nomination, and eulogizing him in advance.

Mr. Wayne McVeagh, of Chester, said the Convention was just about to commit what the practice of the past was intended to guard against, namely, any one person pledging members and counting noses for any particular man, and putting the Convention at the mercy of that man. His lips could not be gagged by the unfair presentation of a candidate on an amendment to a motion for a committee. There should be no stifling of the public will.

The vote on Mr. Mann's motion was yeas 73, nays 87, by division.

Hon. George V. Lawrence demanded the yeas and nays by roll call.

After further warm debate, [Yeas 79, nays 80,] the motion to elect a permanent President was lost.

Hon. Edward McPherson was chosen an additional Secretary to facilitate business, when the following gentlemen were selected as a

The Convention then took a recess until half-past twelve.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Mr. Marshall, of Pittsburg, being called on for a speech, addressed the Convention at length. He wanted a nomination, such as the party, and especially the West, might be proud of; not such a one as would compel us to go back years hence, and cry out our eyes, because we had elected our man. Fifteen years was too long a period to have a bad judge in office.

Hon. Thomas J. Bigham, of Pittsburg, also addressed the Convention at length.—He asserted that President Johnson would carry out the recommendations of his Attorney-General, and accept the resignation of the gallant Sickles, and dismiss our own brave Sheridan, and that he would thus open wider and still wider, the flood gates for the admission of Southern Rebels to the elective franchise. Our opponents had placed in the field George Sharswood, the man who deliberately wrote an opinion denying the right of the government to make its currency a legal tender, contesting the constitutionality of all our financhl measures; and such opinions should crush any judge nominated by any political party, and Jeremiah S. Black had been called out to indorse this nomination, the man who, in the beginning of the war, advised James Buchanan that there was no legal power to suppress the Rebellion.

Andrew Johnson was also called on to indorse Sharswood, and Jeff. Davis would doubtless follow. The speaker was not afraid of results because the people would never fail to recolect who it was that filled our armies and suppressed the insurrection.

PERMANENT OFFICERS.

John H. Walker, of Erie, from the Committee on Parmanent Organization, then reported the following permanent officers:—

President—John Scott, of Huntingdon.

Vice President—First District—Thomas Little; Second—Henry C. Thompson; Third—Wesley Stevenson; Fourth—Charles Williams; Fifth—O. F. Ballard, Captain John T. Potts; Sixth—Hiram A. Williams; Seventh—L. F. Gordon; Eighth—Samuel Shearer; Ninth—Seth W. Geer; Tenth—William L. Lilly; Eleventh—William T. Davis; Twelfth—Jerome G. Miller; Thirteenth—John S. Mann; Fourteenth—Dr. B. F. Wares; Fifteenth—George A. Frick; Sixteenth—Judge Cooper; Seventeenth—Jacob F. Fry, [illegible]; Eighteenth—Henry F. Shell; Twenty-first—J. P. Little, E. C. Humes; Twenty-second—A. W. Kimmel; Twenty-third—Theo. Wilson; Twenty-fourth—Captain Dushane; Twenty-fifth—James L. Graham, S. H. Geyer; Twenty-sixth—Captain Jacob Weyand; Twenty-Seventh—John Etter; Twenty-eighth—M. C. Beebe; Twenty-ninth—S. C. Woodruff.

A large number of Secretaries, headed with Edward McPerson, were also reported. The report was adopted.

HON. JOHN SCOTT'S SPEECH.

It is not my purpose to detain you with any lengthy address, for this call has been to me so entirely unexpected that I do not feel that I am empowered to speak to this convention on the issue which may be involved in the coming election in such a manner as they should be discussed before a body of this character. We are met to make a nomination of a candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court of our State, and whatever might be said of the impropriety of introducing political questions into judicial elections, no man can or ought to shut his eyes to the fact that in all elections for important offices, for some years to come, the position which men who are candidates have occupied in the late rebellion must enter into that contest. There are fundamental questions about the structure and powers of government which are far more important than any questions of mere political expediency can be; and we have arrived at a time in the history of our country when we cannot look with indifference upon the opinions which our judicial officers hold concerning the structure and powers of the Government. Call it politics, if you will, it is the kind of politics which involves the life of a nation; and, in the language of Chief Justice Chase, in that admirable opinion delivered in a North Carolina court within the last few weeks, "there are political questions to which events give the answer." It is highly important for us, gentlemen of the convention, that we place in nomination to-day a man who will agree to the proposition that there are legal questions to which events have given answer. Treason—traitors, that is the word—traitors, in the interest of slavery, made an effort to destroy this Government. Loyalty, in the interest of freedom, resisted the attempt, and has preserved it. Thank God for it. And whether it be the election of a Governor, of Congressmen, of a Legislator, of a President, or of a Supreme Judge, the question will come up to every man's mind, and upon it all important elections will be decided for years to come. That question is: Is it safer to entrust the destinies of this Government in the hands of the men who did save it than to turn it over into the hands of those who either made the effort or sympathized with the effort made to destroy it? That is the question that will be propounded, and it is a significant fact that this rebellion was preceded by the opinion of an Attorney General which denied the right of the General Government to enforce obedience to the laws and the Constitution of the land. It is another significant fact, that the candidate presented by the Democratic party within the last few weeks for the same position for which we are called upon to nominate a candidate to day, had his legal and constitutional views endorsed by the author of that opinion, and thus he goes into the contest saddled with the burden of Judge Black's anti-co-ercion opinion. He could not have a heavier weight to carry, for the opinion of that Attorney General has been buried as useless, rubbish beneath the bones and blood and bodies of the loyal men who gave their lives to refute it. [Long continued applause.] We are met now when another opinion of another Attorney General has been involved to save the veto message which was attributed to his authorship, and given to the world through Andrew Johnson, President of the United States that Congress had not power to legislate for the land it had saved, and who, the logic of that message failing, now endeavors to construe the law so as to defeat the well-known legislative intent which passed, and which formed it. But, thank God again, we are met too, just following the time when Sickles and Sheridan [great applause, in which the voice of the speaker was drowned] we are met upon the eve of the meeting of Congress, called for the purpose of putting in unmistakably a law which no legal sophistry can sweep away.—That we expect them to do. We have control, through the legislative department of the Government, of the destinies of the nation. We may say that we have control of the ship of state; and even if the man (it is an impromptu metaphor. I do not know where it may end); if the man who has charge of the light-house should seek to obscure the lantern from the vessel at sea and run it on the rocks, thank God we have a crew on the vessel that has learned the coast and can save themselves. It is for us, then, to find among the distinguished gentlemen presented to this convention as candidates one who accepts the logic of events, and one who will say, with that admirable opinion to which I have referred, that the man under this Government who goes into armed resistance against it, can come out of that resistance only in two ways—either as a successful revolutionist or a traitor—one who will say that crime is not absolved from its penalty by either its magnitude or respectability; one who will rally to himself the confidence and support and votes of all loyal men: for, while we are here pressing the claims of our respective candidates, it is a gratifying feature to know that none are presented who are not worthy of the support of the loyal men of this State. Let us come together, then, in this spirit of generous rivalry for our friend, and keep in view always the importance of keeping together this organization. Whatever differences may exist upon minor or subordinate questions, we all will agree in keeping in view the issues which are involved in the succes of the Union party.

Henry W. Williams, of Allegheny, was accention, and the nomination was made unanimous, amid much enthusiastic confusion.

The Convention then adjourned until five o'clock P. M.

At which time it again met. The committe on resolutions then reported as follows:

"The Republicans of Pennsylvania, appealing again to the people take pleasure in recalling the repeated occasions on which the voters of the Commonwealth have sustained and ratified their candidates and principles; and strongly impressed with the importance of the issues involved at the ensuing election, make this declaration of their opinions and purposes:

"First. That in the name of a nation saved from treason we demand security against its repetition, by exacting from the vanquished such guarantees as will make treason so odious as to be forever impossible.

"Second. That, as in the past we cordially justified the administration of Abraham Lincoln in all necessary acts for suppressing the rebellion, we record it as our judgment that the administration of Andrew Johnson has been chiefly faithless because it has failed to try to gather up and fix in the organic statute law the great principles which the war has settled, and without whose adoption as a rule of action, peace is but a delusion and a snare.

"Third. That in completion of the task of reconstruction so firmly as to be perpetual, it is indispensable that traitors beaten in the field shall not find a sanctuary in the courts; that the law shall not be tortured to justify or palliate the crimes of which our country's enemies have been guilty; and that the law of war shall be so distinctly declared by the courts that no disturbing and paralyzing doubts may ever be raised, as in 1861 respecting the essential rights of the Government, or personal duties of citizens.

"Fourth. That this Convention, speaking for the Republicans of Pennsylvania, unreservedly indorse the reconstruction measures of the Thirty-ninth and Fortieth Congress as based upon sound principles, essentially just, and wise, and promising an early, loyal and permanent restoration of the rebel States to their share in the government of the Union; that we denounce and condemn the efforts of President Johnson through his pliant Attorney General, and a majority of the Cabinet, to evade those laws, by interfering to obstruct and prevent their enforcement in the spirit in which they were enacted; and that we call upon Congress soon to meet, to promptly and decisively to dispose of this new nullification.

"Fifth. That the thanks of the loyal men of this commonwealth are hereby tendered to Major General Sheridan and Major General Sickles for their publicly declared unwillingness to be made the instruments, in the startling and truthful words, of the former in opening under Presidential dictation, a broad and macadamized way for perjury and fraud to travel on in pursuit of the coveted repossession of political power in the rebel States and that this convention confidently expect that Gen. Grant will vindicate his past record by cordially sustaining them in their patriotic efforts to execute the law.

"Sixth. That President Johnson further merits our condemnation for his reckless pardon and attempted restoration to political rights of many of the chief conspirators against the Union; and that, especially, his persistent efforts to compel the release of Jefferson Davis without question for his crimes, were a reproach to the administration of justice, and an insult to the whole people of the nation.

"Seventh. That, warned by past misfortunes, we ask that the Supreme Court of the State be placed in harmony with the political opinions of a majority of the people, to the end that the Court may never again, by unjust decisions, seek to set aside laws vital to the nation, nor imperil the safety of the public securities, nor impair the operation of the bounty, pension and tax laws which were required for public defense, nor in any way thwart the measures which were essential to the public protection; but that, on the other hand, it may become and remain a fit and faithful interpreter of the liberal spirit of the age, the bulwark of public faith, and an impartial and fearless exponent of the equal rights of man.

"Eighth. That protection being a cardinal feature of the Republican creed, we trust that such legislation will be secured at the earliest period as will afford adequate protection to American industry.

"Ninth. That, in conformity with the pledges given last fall by both candidates for Governor, we now demand the enactment of a free railroad law, by which the enterprise of our people may be stimulated and the resources of the Commonwealth developed.

"Tenth. That in Governor John W. Geary we recognize an honest and courageous public servant, who in the chair of State is adding freshness to laurels gallantly won in the war.

"Eleventh. That the gratitude of the people to the soldiers and sailors whose bravery met, and overthrew the slave-holders' rebellion, should have repeated and emphatic expression; and that we heartily disapprove of and condemn the course of the Secretary of the Treasury in postponing and ignoring the just claims of our brave defenders upon the bounty of the Government awarded to them by the National Congress.

"Twelfth. That in the Hon. Henry Williams, of Allegheny county, we present to the people of Pennsylvania an eminent jurist, one in every way well qualified for the faithful discharge of the responsible duties of the office of Judge of the Supreme Court; an able lawyer, impartial, prompt, and thorough as a Judge; honest, upright, without suspicion as a man; and loyal and unwavering in his devotion to the cause of his country as a patriot."

The resolutions demanding guaranties for the future, condemning the course of Andrew Johnson, indorsing Grant, Sheridan and Sickles, demanding the enactment of a free railroad law in Pennsylvania, and requiring the fulfillment of promises to the soldiers of the Union, were rapturously cheered.

Mr. Cessna moved that a State Central Committee be selected, and that the President appoint the Chairman. Mr. Kunkel, of Dauphin, moved as an amendment, a resolution thanking Colonel Francis Jordan, for his past services and continuing him as the Chairman of the State Central Committee.

Mr. Dickey, of Lancaster, opposed the amendment.

H. Bucher Swope, of Clearfield, said that Colonel Jordon would scarcely have time, in addition to his duties of Secretary of the Commonwealth, to attend to the duties of Chairman of the Committee, at any rate, it was not in good taste.

Wayne McVeagh, of Chester, sustained Mr. Kunkel's amendment.

Mr. Mann, of Philadelphia, opposed the reappointment of Conolel Jordan. It would not be convenient for that gentleman to come to Philadelphia and conduct the canvass, though he was well calculated for the position.

Mr. Wetherill, of Philadelphia appealed eloquently for Colonel Jordan, and announced that that gentleman was willing to accetp the office.

Wayne McVeagh said he was authorized to say that Colonel Jordan would accept.

Mr. Cessna moved that in the event of Colonel Jordan refusing to accept, then the President shall appoint some one else. Agreed to unanimously. (Cheers.)

Mr. Mann moved that the number of members of the committee given Philadelphia be increased from eight to twelve. Agreed to.

Mr. Little, of Huntingdon, tendered a resolution of respect, which was passed, to Hon. A. W. Benedict, the deceased past Secretary of the Central Committe.

Mr. Newlin, of Philadelphia, moved a resolution for impartial suffrage, which was referred to the committee without debate.

Various complimentary resolutions were passed.

The Convention then adjourned sine die.

ABSENCE from home last week has prevented us from collecting up our usual variety of local news.

PICNIC AT ISLAND RUN.—Our young friends of Island Run are making extensive arrangements for a picnic at that place on the 4th. The preparations are extensive, and the "pic seekers" generally will no doubt have a pleasant time of it.

SAD ACCIDENT.—On last Friday a son, aged 10 or 11 years, of Mr. George Taylor, of Fallston, this county, fell through a hole in the saw mill of Miner & Co., of that place, and injured himself very severely. We are not advised at present as to his condition.

OFFICIAL APPOINTMENTS.—Governor Geary has appointed Gen. James S. Negly, of Pittsburgh, to represent Pennsylvania as Trustee of the Antietam National Cemetery Association, vice General John R. Brooke, resigned.

BEAVER FLEECE.—The Washington Examiner says Mr. Samuel McPherson, of Buffalo township, exhibited from one of his bucks twenty pounds of fine, combing wool. The buck is of the Gold-drop, Hammond breed.

Notice is directed to the advertisement of Jackson's Universal Washing Compound, one of the best improvements of the age, which is being introduced in all parts of the United States by agents. J. Kirkland is agent for the borough of Beaver, Rochester, Bridgewater, and New Brighton, and is at present canvassing the above places.

LOOK OUT FOR MAD DOGS.—Our exchanges from every section of the country give accounts of mad dogs.—The season of the year in which hydrophobia is most apt to develop itself, we mean the "dog days"—the warm days of the year, is approaching, and as this fatal disease is very prevalent among the canine race, all should take notice.

THE LENNOX CASE.—On Friday last, Geo. S. Hart, Esq., of counsel for John Lennox, presented to Judge Lowrie of the Supreme Court, at his rooms, in Beaver, a petition for a writ of error, supporting the same with some appropriate remarks. His Honor took the papers, promising to advise the counsel within a few days as to whether the application would be entertained.—Washington Examiner, June 28.

THE BEAVER ARGUS comes to us in a new dress, and looks as fresh as a silver dollar—used to look. (Having seen us infinitely.) The Argus is ably edited by an old and highly esteemed friend, Capt. J. Weyand. A newspaper is not published in the State of Pennsylvania We wish the Captain all kinds of success.—New Brighton.

We have received the new catalogue and circular of the State Normal School at Edinboro. We are glad to see it improves from year to year. Several years ago we would have thought it one of the best schools in the State, and we think it has since steadily increased its reputation and efficiency. In all points which make a first class school it is unsurpassed. All persons who intend to teach should send for its circular. Address the Principal, Prof. J. A. Cooper, Edinboro, Erie Co., Pa.—Erie Daily Dispatch.

NEWSPAPER FOR SALE.—E. G. Roddy, Esq., the editor of the Grains of Liberty, published at Uniontown, in this state, died a few days ago. His administrators are now offering the establishment for sale. It is a very old paper—established, we believe, in 1807—Democratic in politics, has the official printing, and is offered cheap. Any young "chap" who has a little of the "stuff" on hand, and is disposed to fill an editorial chair, has here a chance to "sail in."

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.—The question as to what punishment a teacher exercises over his pupils was decided a few weeks ago in the Montgomery county court, in which a teacher was sued for chastising a pupil with excessive severity. The judge, in his charge to the jury, said that a teacher occupied the position of loco parentis towards his pupils while under his charge, and the court sustained his opinion, and rendered a verdict in favor of the teacher. Order is the first law of nature, and the teacher, without authority to enforce obedience, would be unable to correct or punish, and therefore the common school system a mere farce,—hence is indispensable at times in the school room.

TAKEN UP.—On last Thursday, Constable Grier, of this place, arrested a colored man named George Wilson for stealing a blanket from George Garber, who lives between Vanport and Industry. Walker had a preliminary hearing before Squire Brighton, but the constable failed to come up with him on account of his getting across the river a day or two before a warrant was issued. Walker was sent to jail to await his trial by the court. These colored men are sad characters in this part of the country, and the one referred to says they belonged to Cincinnati.

CARRIER OF MAIL CARRIERS.—On Monday last, Mr. Joseph Acorn, of Bridgewater, commenced carrying the mail to and from Beaver to Rochester. By a "public notice" early in the spring, the contract for so doing was awarded to him by the Post Office Department. It is his intention to run a hack between the two towns, for the accommodation of the public, during the present summer.

THE SETTLED.—The case of Messrs. Little and Wilson, for Robert Fogler during his trial for the murder of Robert W. Dinsmore, on Tuesday last, in Washington County Court, presented to Judge Lowrie, affidavits denying the charges which Fogler made in his public confession. William Montgomery, Esq., appeared in their behalf, and argued that the affidavits were all that was necessary to relieve Fogler from the implication cast upon them. Judge Lowrie, however, ruled otherwise, and appointed Hon. Geo. Hay, Commissioner, and Wm. McKennan and George Hart, Esqs., Attorneys on behalf of Fogler, to take testimony in the case for consideration at next term.—Pitts. Commercial.

PEOPLE'S SAVINGS BANK.—Our readers are respectfully referred to the advertisement in another column of the advertisement of the People's Savings Bank of Pittsburgh. This Bank has been in existence but a short time, but its purposes being so commendable, and its officers the confidence of the community in which the business is located, has enabled it already to build up a very large and growing business, which will no doubt be increased as the institution grows in years. S. F. Vonbonhorst, Esq., well and favorably known to many of our citizens is the Secretary and Treasurer, and we consider it a fact well known when we say that a more efficient and accommodating business man can hardly anywhere be found. People desiring to save a portion of their earnings would find it advantageous to call and see and to give this institution their patronage.

EXAMINATION OF BEAVER ACADEMY.—Though unable to be present at the time of this examination, all reports we have heard concerning it were decidedly favorable. "Better drilled class exercises, taken together, are seldom seen," was the verdict of the visitors.

The visitors, though not very great, has been quite good, and has been maintained through the year. The attention given to elocution, particularly in the last term, has produced a decided improvement in the speaking and reading. We are glad to see that the classes in the ornamentary branches were brought forward as far as they were, and that the classes in Latin and Greek. We learn that a catalogue is to be published in a few days, when we shall endeavor still further to this time to speak more fully of the institution.

ACCIDENT ON THE C. & P. R. R.—A WOMAN KILLED.—An accident occurred on the Cleveland and Pittsburg R. R., between Dixmont and Glendale stations, on Thursday morning last, resulting in the death of an old lady named Abigail Ferris. It appears, from the evidence taken by the Coroner's Jury, that the deceased went to the opposite side of the railroad for a bucket of water, and while crossing the track, on her return to the house, was struck by the engine of the Wellsville accommodation train and pitched into the air, falling on the ground beside a fence, a considerable distance from the track. The force of the blow broke her skull, killing her instantly. The train was stopped immediately and the body carried into the house. No blame is attached to the engineer or conductor of the train, as the jury, after brief deliberation, returned the following verdict: "That Abigail Ferris came to her death on the 27th of June, 1867, by being accidentally run over by the accommodation train attached to engine No. 10, on the C. & P. R. R., and the jury do hereby fully exonerate the employees of the train from all blame." The deceased was about seventy-five years of age and leaves a husband and son and daughter to mourn her loss.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK AT PROF. TAYLOR'S SEMINARY.—Of the examination on Tuesday of many of the younger pupils, of the essays, dialogues, and music, we will not speak, though much might be said in commendation of them and their faithful teachers. The "Kalamethean" held their first public exercises on Tuesday evening, and for those who desired a real literary treat, they have not been excelled by any similar exercise in the past. The recitations were, without exception, first class, while that of the "Bells" by the society in concert could not be readily surpassed. The first part of the paper deserves the highest commendation for its style, and the manner in which it was read.

As the proceeds were stated to be for the purpose of establishing prizes for recitations and essays, the public will hereafter look for something worthy of their attention, when they shall be invited to listen to their exercises.

The examinations on Wednesday and Thursday were very largely attended, and elicited high encomiums in nearly every case. Miss Elliot's classes in Physiology and especially in English Literature, are deserving of special notice. Mrs. Kean's classes in His. of the World and Botany acquitted themselves with great credit; while Prof. Taylor's classes, whose classes never fail, I believe, in Cæsar, Cicero, Latin Grammar, Trigonometry, and Moral Science, did themselves and teacher much honor.

The address in the evening by Rev. Gorham, of Philadelphia, was an able and well-delivered production, and was evidently highly appreciated by the audience. The attraction on Thursday afternoon was a "match game" of Croquet for a "set of Croquet" provided by Prof. Taylor, between the Seminary and Beaver clubs. The former consisted of Miss Mitchell, chief, and Misses Walker, Kingsley, and Weyand, and the latter of Miss Ella McCreery, chief, and Misses Boacom, Shumaker, and Lyon.

The game was witnessed by a large number of persons, who, as it was a close one, became deeply interested with it.

The Beaver club was, at the end of a two hours' contest, declared victors, amid the applause of their friends.

The presentation was made by Prof. Houghton, and the reply by Mr. Courson, of McKeesport.

The Commencement took place in the M. E. Church, which, notwithstanding the rain, was well filled. The young ladies did themselves and their Alma Mater much credit, adding to its reputation, already well established, for thorough, accurate scholarship. The music on the occasion was of the first order. It is proper to commend the good taste displayed by the ladies in their adornment; and may not be invidious to mention Miss Russell's essay as exhibiting patient thought and much finish. The address of Rev. Mr. Lowry was well adapted to the occasion. After which Prof. Taylor awarded diplomas to the following eight young ladies, one half of whom, I am glad to see, are from this vicinity: Misses Russell, Moorhead and Woodruff, of Bridgewater, and Miss Reno, of Rochester, Miss Shilling, of New Philadelphia, O., Miss Weyand, of Somerset, Miss Todd, of Georgetown, and Miss Mitchell, valedictorian of Leavenworth, Kansas. After the exercises at Church the alumnæ and many of their young friends from abroad and the vicinity, repaired to the Seminary for a collation, of which deponent, as he was non est, saith not.

MAXIMILIAN is reported to have been shot, in pursuance of a sentence of court martial, on the 19th of June.

DIED.

KATTARRAH.—On June 23d, 1867, Annie Linn, youngest daughter of Frederick and Sarah Kattarrar, aged 2 years and 7 months.

"Farewell, dear child, in God we trust
Thou'art from pain forever free.
Though thou canst not return to us,
Yet we through Christ may go to thee."

A FRIEND.

LITTELL.—On the 1st of July, 1867, at the residence of his brother, in this place, Henry C. Littell, aged 22 years.

The deceased had been a soldier of the Union army for a period of over three years, and was attached to Co. E., 16th Ohio Vol. Infantry. While in the service, he contracted the disease of which he died.

EDITOR ARGUS:—Having like yourself enlisted in the service of our country, I have always felt a deep interest in the children of our deceased soldiers; and who is there that has fought with those noble men that does not? On the tenth inst., I was fortunate in being on the cars when the soldiers' orphans from Phillipsburg, under the care of the Rev. W. G. Taylor, passed up to the Monumental Fair on the cars. They were most perfectly orderly in the cars, keeping in their places, and their heads and arms inside, which showed the discipline they were under. When they got out of the cars, they fell into line like old soldiers. Their whole appearance, to me, was beautiful and impressive, and warmed up my heart. The dress, of both boys and girls, was neat and clean, the boys perfectly uniformed, and the girls with just sufficient vanity to give beauty. Their persons were clean and nice. Like a boy following the "shogers," I followed them to the fair, where I can assure you they found many friends. The many persons on the streets they passed showed the interest, and the many friends they found in the hall, showed the same fact. Here they conducted themselves with the utmost propriety, and called forth constant commendation, and left singing "the star spangled banner." Your county may well be proud of that school, and thank its principal for his untiring efforts—efforts that seemed to me as I looked into his naturally cheerful face, had written anxious care upon every feature.

On the subject of these schools there has been in our city and State too great apathy. I have waited to see what impression the appearance of this school would make, and I am glad to say that it has been very good, and it has awakened an interest on behalf of the soldiers' orphans such as was never before felt. (If our Legislators could have seen this sight, I think they would not be so tardy in making the appropriation necessary to carry them on.) Rarely have I found an interest awakened by a single incident that lasted so long. I heard an old merchant say "Those orphans made a splendid impression." I heard one of our first business men say in the most earnest manner: "My heavens! how little we have appreciated the education of these orphans." One of the oldest teachers of the State, as he looked upon the care-worn face of its principal, and then upon the order to which this chaotic mass of 180 or 190 had been reduced, said: "I would not take his place for the world." Another man said, "Those children are a credit to any man."

It seems to me that the interest this visit has occasioned will secure an appropriation from the Legislature promptly next winter.

J. D.

Pittsburgh, June 22, 1867.

EDITOR ARGUS:—I have read something in your paper about J. H. Odell's "Military Record." I would like you would gratify your readers by stating where he served, whether in the Union or Confederate armies? It is well known that there was rebels throughout the Union armies in disguise, who by their insubordination and treachery, aided the enemy in every way within their power, secretly shot down loyal men, but never disturbed the enemy. Was this the part Odell played, or was he in the rebel service, or was his record made in resisting the draft in Noble County.

Will you please explain? Every one knows he is opposed to the government, and in favor of the rebellion. And yet, it is said, he has a "Military Record." QUERIST.

MR. EDITOR:—I desire to commend highly the essays of our local graduates at the late Commencement of the Beaver Seminary, as I deem them all worthy of it. The first essay, "we are growing old," by Miss Woodruff, was read with much spirit and exhibited good taste and correct observation. Miss Moorhead's on "Rest for the weary," adhered closely to the subject, was well read, and contained some beautiful thoughts. Miss Reno's essay, "Looking back" was a very pretty, and some one in our hearing said characteristic, essay—was well delivered. Miss Russel's on "Heroism" secured the marked attention of the most thoughtful of the assembly, which is sufficient praise. It was said by those accustomed to attend those exercises that it was seldom that eight essays all so good were read. COM.

Bull Run.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial writing of a visit to the battle-field of Bull Run, says: "The first sight that greeted my eyes at Manassas Junction, was a forcible reminder of the war. Two huge piles of bones; horse bones, cattle bones, and sad to say, human bones intermingled, lay whitening right in front of the hotel. They are picked up off the battle-field by the owners of the soil, and carted here for shipment by the cars to be ground into fertilizers, at some mill in Baltimore. The price here is a penny a pound, one of Fairbank's platform scales standing ready by the railway track, to weigh the deliveries, and several tons of bones have been shipped. One man with a girl to help him, collected in two days, bones enought to came to $16. My landlord, a Pennsylvania Dutchman named Varner, bro't out a long and powerful looking bone from behind the bar, saying, 'here, now, is some poor fellow's thigh bone.' The sight was not one to inspire cheerful reflection. In another great heap were piled masses of camp kettles, broken musket barrels, wheel tires, solid shot and broken shells, fragments of swords, bits of wagon gear, old rusty firelocks, and the like. This, too, is for the market, the last relics of the huge debris of destruction of which every battle is fruitful."

Distressing Accident at Dixmont.

A sad accident occurred at Dixmont Insane Asylum on Saturday morning at an early hour. Mrs. Annie Ballou, an incurable patient, from Erie county, who had been placed in a ward in the fourth story of the building, attempted to effect her escape from the institution. By means of a hair-pin she succeeded in removing a wooden strip from the window, which enabled her to open the iron grating about ten inches. She then tied a number of soiled towels together, and fastened one end to the water-pipe, intending by this means to reach the ground. She did not calculate the distance correctly, however, and after forcing herself through the aperture, fell to the ground below. Her moans awakened the nurse, who hurried to her assistance, carried her into the house, and notified Dr. Reed. Strange to say, no bones were broken, the only injury apparent being a slight cut on the head. Her system, however, was greatly prostrated, and she died about noon. Coroner Clawson held an inquest on the body on Saturday afternoon, and a verdict was rendered in accordance with the facts.—Pitts. Com.

MILL BURNED.—A steam portable sawmill, with a shingle and lath factory attached, located on the Henry Urey farm, one and a half miles south of New Lebanon, in Mercer county, was destroyed by fire last Wednesday night. The mill alone, says the Dispatch, was worth near $4000, besides the lumber and material destroyed. We learn that there was no insurance on the property.—Lawrence Journal.

TRAGIC DEATH OF AN AUSTRIAN ARCHDUCHESS.—Archduchess Matilda, the intended wife of Prince Humbert of Italy, a Princess, in her 19th year, by all accounts endowed with the rare gifts of person, mind and heart, died in Vienna on the morning of June 6th. She inadvertently trod on a lucifer match, which was lying at her feet on the floor, as she leaned out of the window talking to one of her relatives. Her summer dress was in a blaze before she was aware of it, and before any one could run to her rescue she sank to the ground in an agony of pain from which only death released her. The lady was the affianced bride of Prince Humbert, the heir of the throne of Italy. Prince Humbert was enjoying the festivities of Paris when the news of the accident of the Archduchess reached him, and he immediately left, it is supposed, for Vienna.

Empire Sewing Machine

I respectfully solicit an examination of the same by the public.

THIS Machine is constructed on a new principle of mechanism, possessing many rare and valuable improvements, having been examined by the most profound experts, and pronounced to be simplicity and perfection combined.

In a mechanical point of view, the advantages we claim for the "EMPIRE MACHINE," are—

1st.—The method of driving the Needle Bar by a compound crank, which produces the same action as heretofore obtained by means of a Cam; but in a more durable and noiseless manner.

2d.—We use a rotating shaft above the table, and thus are enabled to give all the room required under the arm; without detriment to the durability of Machines; having a bearing directly over the Needle Bar.

3d.—Our Feed Wheel is a friction feed, and so constructed, there is but one joint in transmitting the motion from the rock shaft to the wheel, and unlike all others, cannot be effected by oil or dust.

4th.—The Rock Shaft that works the Feed motion also drives the Shuttle. The bearings of this Shaft and Centres are hardened steel and adjustable, so that we can take up the lost motion at will.

The following are the principal objections urged against Sewing Machines:

1. Excessive fatigue to the operator.
2. Liability to get out of order.
3d. Expense, trouble, and loss of time in repairing.
4. Incapacity to sew every description of material.
5. Disagreeable noise while in operation.

The Empire Sewing Machine is Exempt from all these Objections.

It has a straight needle, perpendicular action, makes the lock or shuttle stitch, which will neither rip nor ravel, and is alike on both sides; performs perfect sewing on every description of material, from Leather to the finest Nansook Muslin, with cotton, linen, or silk thread, from the coarest to the finest number.

IT HEMS, FELLS, BINDS, BRAIDS, TUCKS, QUILTS, PLAITS, and GATHERS.

Having neither cam nor cog wheel, and the least possible friction, it runs as smooth as glass, and is Emphatically a Noiseless Machine.

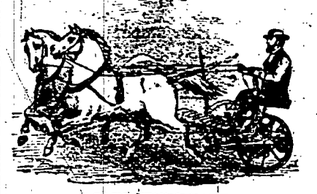
BUCKEYE

Mower and Reaper!



AGAIN TRIUMPHANT!

This extensively known, and deservedly popular Machine was submitted to the most vigorous test of its superiority, at a trial of competing machines that took place under the management of the New York Society, at Auburn, N. Y., in July, 1866. The committee consisted of eleven judges, and forty machines were entered as contestants for the prize. The trial lasted three weeks and the tests were most thorough. The result was announced at the State Fair held at Saratoga on the 12th of September last, and the

was then awarded the

as the machine

Allowed for 7 3-10s,.....1,014 80

You pay Government.....4 76

It will be seen by this that the Gold interest is given as currency, which is of itself a profit to the party converting the 7-30s nearly eight dollars per $1,000, aside from the fact that at the present rate of Gold, the 5-20s pay over 8 per cent. per annum.

We are converting the 7 3-10s on much better terms than the Government, as the present buying and selling rates enable us to allow the holder of the 7 3-10s a better figure than has yet been offered by any one as a commission.

We also exchange the new 4-20 bond for the other series of 7 3-10s on the most favorable terms.

Parties exchanging through us, in addition to their getting much better terms than they can from the Government, will have their 5-20s delivered to them immediately, thus saving delay. We also register any bonds sent to us without charge. On all bonds sent us by express we pay charges both ways, and send bonds promptly as directed.

FALLSTON FOUNDRY!

ENGINE & REPAIR SHOP,

In Fallston Beaver County, Pa.

HAVING refitted and enlarged my stock of machinery and tools, and having secured the services of the best of mechanics, I am prepared to warrant all work done to give entire satisfaction. I have on hand different patterns and styles of Engines, Fire Clay Rolls, and am prepared to make or repair all descriptions of machinery, on reasonable terms.

PLOWS AND PLOW CASTINGS.

I have all the best plow patterns that suit this market, among which is the "Great Western," which has been THE plow of the county for the last fifteen years. There are five sizes of this plow, all of which I manufacture and keep for sale; also "Patent Lever"—right and left—"Mountain King,"—right and left—"Side Hill," and nearly all the different kinds in use.

COOKING, FRANKLIN AND HEATING STOVES.

Having made several important improvements on the "Climax," by which coal or wood can be supplied without lifting lids, and having two places for pipe, either or both of which can be used at the same time, with a ventilation to the oven, thus having the advantages of a Cooking Stove, Bake oven and Franklin Stove combined. This Stove has been in constant use for twenty years, and many of them after being used for this period of time, are now in good order. There is but a small portion of this stove that ever burns out, and this is easily and cheaply replaced. To make them still more lasting, we are now putting in tile or fire brick lining. Our other patterns are the Enterprise, Keystone and Premium. Parlor Stoves, large and small heating Stoves, Franklin Stoves, Jenny Lind's, &c. Grate and Grate Fronts, Fenders, Iron Railing of various styles, Wagon Boxes, two Irons, Tire Benders, Corn Shellers, Force and Cistern Pumps, Sad Irons, Metal Sinks for kitchen, Sheet Iron and Tinware, always on hand and made to order. In fact, I manufacture and keep for sale, almost everything wanted in the machinery or hardware line.

Second hand stoves always for sale cheap. Two good new engines, suitable for saw-mill or shop purposes now on hand, and will be sold reasonable.
